Clerk to the Fulton County
Board of Commissioners

2012 Georgia County Clerk of the Year
Vice President - Georgia County
Clerks Association (GCCA)

Mark.Massey@fultoncountyga.gov

Dear Fulton County Commissioners and Citizens:

2013 was a very busy year in the Clerk's Office. Of particular significance, we began utilizing a new Automated Agenda Management System, thanks to the support of the Board of Commissioners in 2011. This project has been quite time consuming and it has changed a number of internal and systematic policies and procedures designed to be more efficient, innovative and streamlined. We are now using a SIRE Technologies product, owned by Hyland Software. As a result, changes are underway within the County, including but not limited to the following:

- The manner and timeframe for placing items on an agenda;
- Restructuring how Commissioners vote during meetings;
- Creating the official minutes for meetings of the Board of Commissioners;
- Capturing video, by agenda item; and,
- Managing the document repository used to conduct research and organizing public participation during meetings.

We also continue to offer exceptional customer service in the areas of administrative support to the Board of Commissioners and other departments, along with providing information and referrals regarding County Services. Some of the many services the Clerk's office provides are notary services, responses to open records and research requests, processing of indigent burials, certificates of need, lobbyist registrations, certified committed relationships, as well as maintaining the County Board Management System (CBMS). We are dedicated to providing timely and accessible service in response to all inquiries and requests for public information and records.

I want to thank you in advance for taking the time to review some of our accomplishments for 2013. As records management professionals, we welcome the opportunity to hear from you regarding how we can function even better in the future.

Sincerest regards,
Clerk to the Fulton County Board of Commissioners

Mark Massey

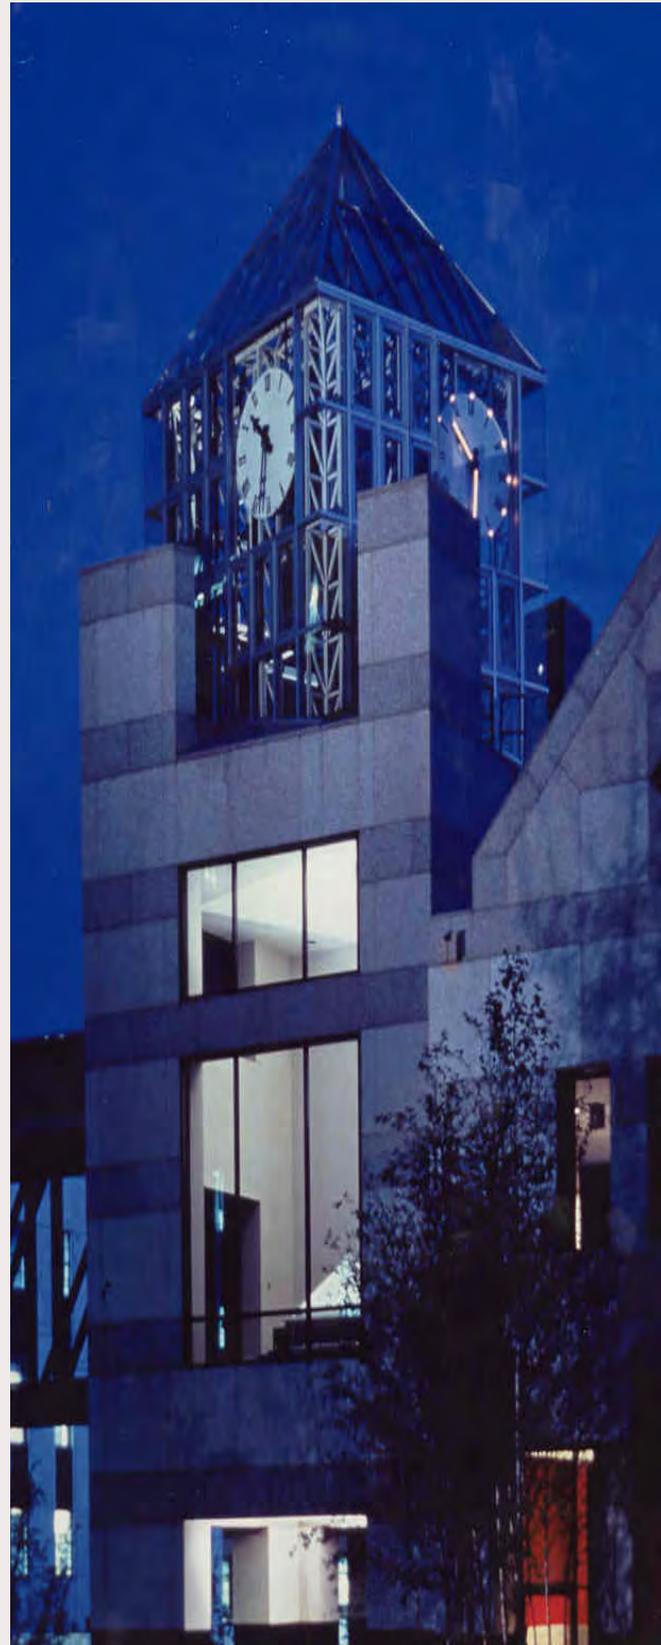

The Clerk

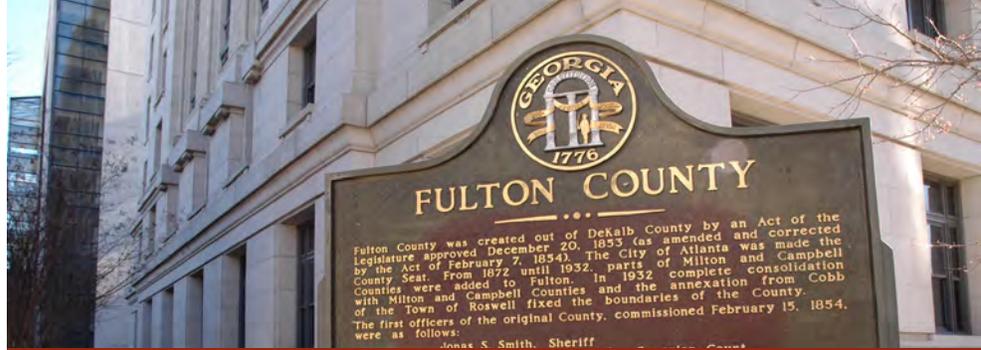

The modern Hebrew translation of town clerk is “mazkir ha’ir,” which literally translated means city or town “reminder.” The early keepers of archives were often called “remembrancers,” and before writing came into use, their memory served as the public record.

Before there were commissioners, mayors, town councils, and town managers, there were town clerks. The Clerk is the oldest of public servants in local government, along with the tax collector, and the profession traces back before Biblical times. Then and now, the Clerk’s Office serves as a direct link between citizens of the community and their government. Every town, city, county, village, and tribe in the world has at least one person who – by whatever title he or she is known – serves in the role of town clerk: custodian of official public records; communicator of public policy; organizer of public business; recorder of the community’s history; and performer of many varied tasks that assist in the smooth operation of local governance. In writing one of the first-ever textbooks published on municipal administration, Professor William Bennett Munro stated in 1934, “No other office in municipal service has so many contacts. The Municipal Clerk’s Office serves the citizens, the mayor, the city council, the city manager/administrator, and all administrative and operational departments of the city without exception. All of them call upon it, almost daily, for some service or information. Its work is not spectacular, but it demands versatility, alertness, accuracy, and no end of patience. The public does not realize how many loose ends of city administration this office pulls together.”

For more than a century, the Fulton County Clerk has faithfully prepared, maintained, and provided the Board of Commissioners’ records.

The County

Fulton County was established December 20, 1853, but the original occupants of its land can be traced back to 15,000 B.C., when it was the home of the Cherokee and Creek tribes. Their tools, ceremonial mounds, and campsites have been discovered along the banks of the Chattahoochee River, the natural boundary between the two tribes.

During the late 17th century, this area was inhabited by Europeans and Africans, and the number of immigrants was rising quickly. This steady increase in population necessitated government action by the state of Georgia; therefore, between 1817 and 1825, the state acquired tracts of land for these settlers under five treaties signed by the United States and Native American Nations.

To establish a county for the growing city of Atlanta, Fulton County was created out of portions of Cherokee, Coweta, Fayette, Henry, and Gwinnett counties. The origin of the County's name is uncertain. Two theories exist: Fulton County could have been named after steamboat inventor Robert Fulton or railroad surveyor Hamilton Fulton.

Fulton County was initially governed by a five-justice panel known as the Inferior Court. In 1880, this governing body was replaced with a separate five-member Board of Commissioners of Roads and Revenues. Board members were elected by the Grand Jury and served three-year terms. Less than 10 years later, the law was changed to allow qualified voters to elect Board members to four-year terms.

During the next 85 years, Fulton County became the South's largest urban area. In January 1955, the Board of Commissioners of Roads and Revenues reduced its number of members from five to three. In 1968, the Board's name was changed to the Fulton County Board of Commissioners. In 1975, the Board of Commissioners expanded to seven members, a number selected as a fair and effective representation of the area's population. Candidates for the Board of Commissioners must be residents of Fulton County and at least 25 years old.

Today, Fulton County's population is approximately 925,500 with more than 620,000 registered voters. The County comprises 529 square miles and is 70 miles long. Its maximum width is 13.4 miles; and its minimum, 1.6 miles. Its highest elevation is 1,208 feet above sea level, and it has 75 miles of frontage along the Chattahoochee River.

The city of Atlanta is the county seat and capital of Georgia. In addition to Atlanta, Fulton County has thirteen other municipalities: Alpharetta, Chattahoochee Hills, College Park, Johns Creek, East Point, Fairburn, Hapeville, Milton, Mountain Park, Palmetto, Roswell, Sandy Springs, and Union City.

The County government, through its various programs and services, is a major force in the development of successful communities.

Roles and Responsibilities

Process Indigent Burials

The County, in accordance with Georgia Law (36-12-5), provides funds for the burial of deceased citizens whose families cannot afford funeral costs. The County pays $600 for funeral services and pays a separate contracted amount for cemetery services. The Department of Family and Children Services (DFACS) manages the County's Burial Program, and its services include investigating the application, making arrangements with the funeral home, and creating the necessary documentation.

The Clerk's Office reviews the documentation from DFACS, approves payment to the funeral home, and keeps a record of the transaction. The County Chaplain goes to the burial site and conducts the interment ceremony.

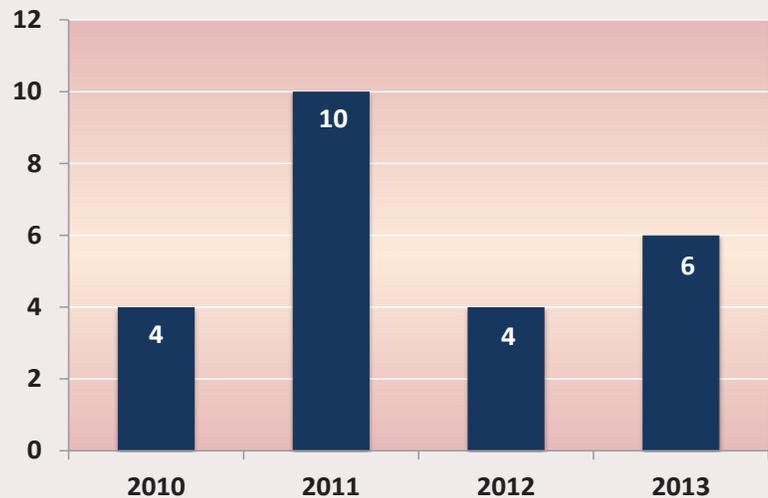

Process Certificates of Need

A Certificate of Need is a request by a health care organization for financial assistance from the State Health Planning Director to develop or expand health care services and facilities. The State requires that the application for a Certificate of Need be filed in the Clerk's Office, which prepares a receipt for the applicant, sends a copy of the receipt to the State, and keeps a record of the documents.

Maintain Financial Disclosure Forms

In accordance with the Fulton County Code of Ethics, certain Fulton County officials (as defined) are required to submit to the Clerk's Office a Personal Financial Disclosure Statement, which reports all sources of income from the preceding calendar year. The Clerk's Office creates the document in coordination with the County Attorney. The Clerk receives the statements, files them accordingly, and makes them available upon request. Those required to file include the Board of Commissioners, Sheriff, District Attorney, Tax Commissioner, Solicitor General, Clerk of Superior Court, various judges, department heads, and property appraisers.

In addition, the Clerk's Office provides the following functions all year long:

- Schedule employee orientations for Board of Commissioners' and Clerk's staffs.
- Process work orders for Board of Commissioners' and Clerk's offices.
- Hire, supervise, and train Clerk's staff.
- Take inventory and order office supplies and equipment for Board of Commissioners' and Clerk's offices.
- Process personnel and payroll matters for the Board of Commissioners' and Clerk's offices.
- Manage procurement and monitor expenditures for the Board of Commissioners' and Clerk's offices.
- Coordinate training and travel arrangements for the Board of Commissioners' and Clerk's offices.
- Coordinate reservations for various meeting facilities (10th Floor and 4th Floor Conference Rooms, and Assembly Hall) for internal and external agencies.
- Act as liaison to services both inside and outside the County government.
- Coordinate formal ceremonies, special events, and activities for the Board of Commissioners and the Clerk's Office.
- Poll Board on various matters to obtain consensus. To obtain a consensus from Board members, the Clerk's Office conducts polls to ascertain the Board's interest on a given matter, usually regarding participation in a particular activity/event, approval to hear a presentation from an outside organization, preferences regarding when to conduct Special Call meetings, etc.

Board Appointment Management

The County has numerous Boards, Authorities, and Commissions that provide a variety of services for Fulton County Government. Members of the Board of Commissioners either serve or appoint citizens to serve on these organizations. Some of these citizens must be sworn in to their positions. The Clerk to the Commission administers an oath of office to these individuals, as requested.

Board Appointment Management responsibilities of the Clerk's Office include:

- Maintain the County Board Management System (CBMS). The public can log on to Fulton County's website (www.fultoncountyga.gov) and obtain information about each Board, Committee, Task Force or Authority, including their functions and members. Internally, the Clerk's Office and Commission staff can access a database, where unlimited independent searches can be conducted and various document reports generated. At the website, research can be done on all acting legislation that created each of the named entities.
- Update contact information of appointees; receive and file resumes.
- Maintain information for points of contact and operating procedures for each Board, Authority, Commission, and Task Force.
- Maintain historical legislation and general information about each Board, Authority, Commission, and Task Force.
- Notify the Board of Commissioners of vacancies, term expirations, and resignations of the various Boards.
- Prepare and mail correspondence to announce when the Board takes action on the appointments.
- Maintain and update lists of elected officials within Fulton County and the metro area.
- Manage an annual contract with the Clerk to the Board of Ethics, process stipend payments to the members of the Board of Ethics, and process reimbursements for legal representation.

Records Management Responsibilities

- Develop and implement the records retention schedule internally and externally.
- Retain (in-office) three years of hard-copy documents of the Board of Commissioners' actions.
- Facilitate the transfer of official records and supporting documents to external repository agencies for permanent storage. After records have remained in the Clerk's Office for three years, these documents are transferred to another facility for storage. This facility is called the Fulton County Records Management Center, and it is located at 3031 Commerce Way. When the Clerk's Office needs to retrieve documents that have been archived, a request form is submitted to the Center, and the documents are located and delivered to the Clerk's Office within 24 hours. The County's older records (1880-1989) are stored at the Atlanta History Center.
- Provide certification of records. The Clerk's records are frequently used in legal proceedings, and courts often require that these records be certified in accordance with the law. When a request is made to certify a document, the Clerk's Office authenticates the document by verifying the content and attaching it to a special form that is stamped with the County seal. Only documents initiated and maintained within the Clerk's Office can be certified. When a record is certified by the Clerk, it shall be taken and received in all courts, public offices, and official bodies as prima-facie evidence of action taken by the Fulton County Board of Commissioners or evidence of documents on file within the Clerk's Office. A certificate is made by the Clerk under the seal of the office as to the existence or nonexistence of facts. The Clerk, at any time, upon the request of any person, shall make and certify additional copies of any document filed with the office, if any, upon payment of the fee for providing this service.
- Develop and implement systems for the efficient processing of all official County contracts, resolutions, proclamations, and agreements.
- Sign/attest to the Chair's and Commissioners' signatures on all County contracts, resolutions, proclamations, and agreements.
- Respond to open records requests and routine/complex research requests.

Fulton County Code of Laws

The Code of Laws of Fulton County is a unique assemblage of state laws of local and general application, provisions of the Constitution of the State of Georgia relating to counties, and Fulton County Ordinances and Resolutions - which together not only define the jurisdiction and authority of Fulton County elected and appointed officials, but reflect many policies and procedures adopted by the Board of Commissioners of Fulton County. With assistance from the County Attorney's Office, which typically drafts the original Resolutions and Ordinances and advises when updating is required, the Clerk's Office manages a contract with an outside vendor for the efficient development of a web-based publication of the Code Book. The vendor contract is with the Municipal Code Corporation (Municode.com). This document is updated on a quarterly basis and occasionally codified per approval by the Board of Commissioners.

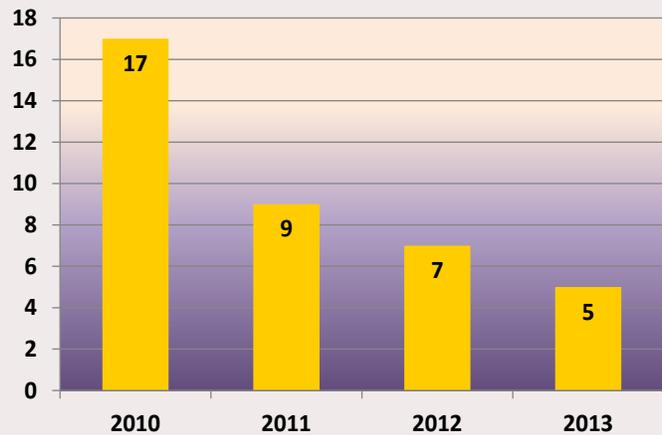

Fulton County Board of Commissioners Procedural Rules

The Procedural Rules were adopted by the Board of Commissioners to allow its members the opportunity to reach decisions in an organized and fair manner. The Rules establish the framework for the use of Parliamentary Procedure during Board meetings. When amendments are made to the Rules, the Clerk's Office is responsible for updating, maintaining, and disseminating them to all applicable parties. In addition, the Rules are posted on the County's website.

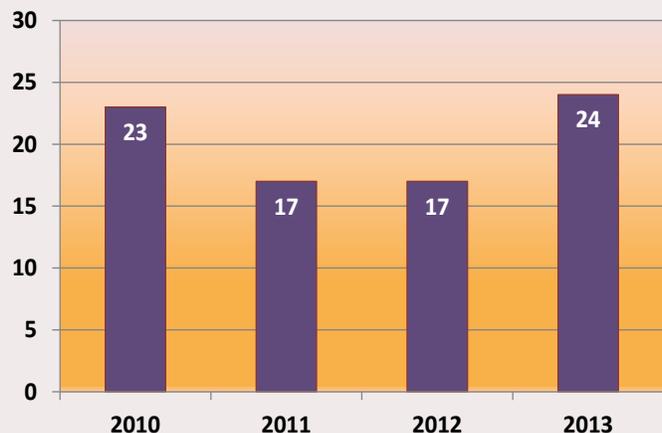

Lobbyist Registrations

In 2003, the Board of Commissioners passed a Resolution requiring the registration of all lobbyists who conduct business with the County beginning in 2004. The Clerk's Office became the designated department to register lobbyists. To register, lobbyists pay an annual $10 filing fee and submit copies of the required State Ethics Commission registration and report forms.

Certified Committed Relationships

After the Board passed a Resolution in 2003 recognizing same-gender relationships, the Clerk's Office became the location to certify these documented relationships. Certification enables Fulton County citizens and employees to be treated in a manner equivalent to all other residents or employees, with respect to County programs and services. Additionally, employees may receive family leave and insurance benefits.

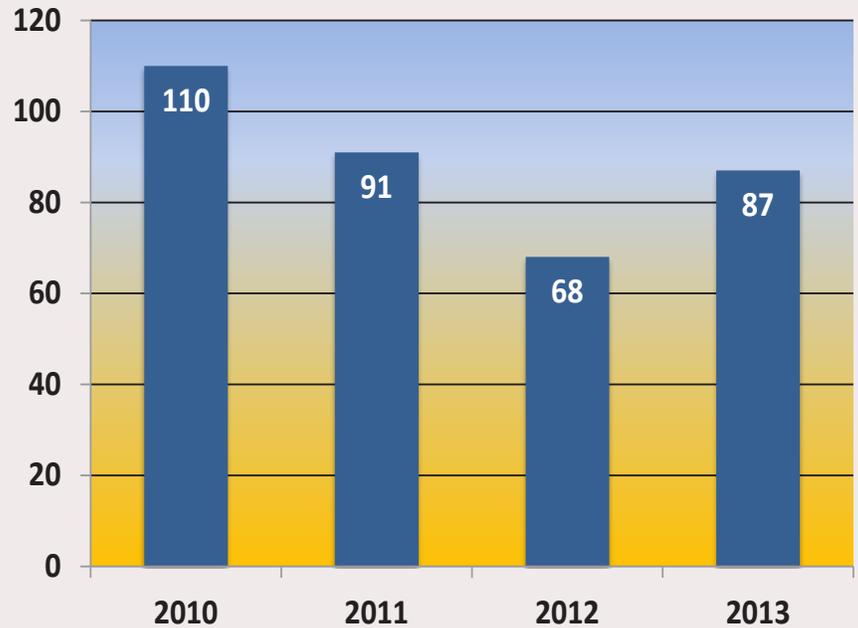

Customer Service

Fulton County is the most populated county in Georgia and the location of the state's capital. The County is also the Southeast's largest transportation hub, has the world's busiest airport, and is home to several Fortune 500 companies. A significant number of prominent elected officials, business representatives, and citizens engage with Fulton County Government. The Clerk's Office manages the reception area for the Board of Commissioners and the County Manager's Office and places considerable emphasis on exceptional customer service.

Other services provided by the Clerk's Office include:

- Providing information and referrals regarding County services.
- Providing reception services and security for access to the Board of Commissioners' offices (10th Floor).
- Providing access to records via the internet and microfilm in the Clerk's Office resource room.
- Providing notary services.
- Responding to research requests; more than 400 requests were documented last year.

Work Orders Resolved

Technology

The office of the Clerk to the Commission is the first line of defense for correcting the IT technical and maintenance problems for the systems utilized by the Fulton County Board of Commissioners and their staffs. These issues can range from minor application glitches to complete system re-installations.

The Clerk's Office manages several maintenance agreements with vendors who supply applications that have become necessary for operations. We have agreements with International Roll-Call for the voting system and software; Milner Voice & Data for digital recording devices; ISPA, Inc. for electronic storage/document repository, i.e. DocDepot; and Municipal Code Corporation for the development and online repository of the Fulton County Code of Laws.

One of the many goals that the Clerk's Office is striving to achieve is the conversion of a complete record of the minutes and post agendas of the Board of Commissioners dating back to 1880. This information is currently in microfilm form, paper form, or electronic form on DocDepot or an application called Papervision. The goal is to create a unified repository and medium, i.e. electronic media, to house all minutes and post agendas.

The Clerk's Office also solves technical issues involving DocDepot and the County Board Management System (CBMS) computer applications, which are used by employees and citizens.

Number of work orders resolved by IT	66
Number of issues resolved by the Clerk's Office	430

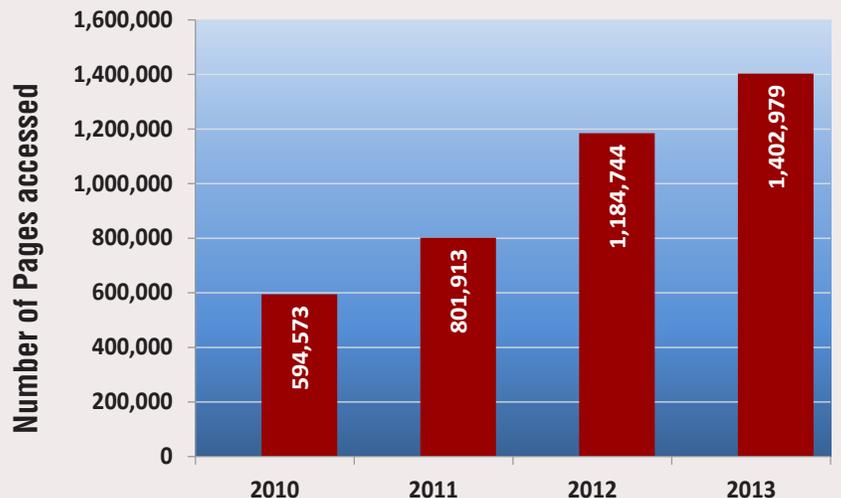

DocDepot

DocDepot is a web-based document repository and delivery system. It enables multiple users to access documents of any format via the Internet or company intranet using their web browsers. Documents can be retrieved based on document index (meta) data of full-text searches. DocDepot also enables users to store, retrieve, and search documents based on logical groupings of related documents, such as projects, organizations, etc. Expedited searches are based on DocDepot's database information (title, author, document number, or similar customer-defined fields); more robust searches look through the text of the documents themselves.

The Clerk's Office remains committed to seeking more efficient methods of retrieving information from its records. In 2004, the Office installed the DocDepot System, which greatly enhanced the public's ability to obtain data from meetings conducted by the Board of Commissioners. Citizens can log on to Fulton County's website, select a particular Board meeting, and conduct a search using a word, date, or item number to locate and view the Board's minutes, actions, and supporting documentation.

Anyone with access to the Internet can use DocDepot to research recent agendas or past post agendas and minutes of the Fulton County Board of Commissioners' meetings dating back to 1970. By the close of business on each Friday before a scheduled Board meeting, the agenda is posted on the County's website with supporting documentation for each item. By the close of business on each Friday after a Board meeting, a post agenda is posted on the County's website. The verbatim minutes are posted approximately 30 days later upon ratification at the Board meeting.
